Dress Code And Social Etiquettes

Dubai dwellers take dress code and etiquettes very seriously so one of the tips for Dubai trip would be to keep those in check. Check the others below and make sure you follow the lead.

- When in local company, women travelers should avoid shaking hands unless the men offer to shake hands first.
- Being a country with traditional values it is important to dress as per the local sensibilities. It is preferable to keep your shoulders and knees covered while visiting public places like the malls.

- Shorts and sleeveless clothing are acceptable at major tourist places as well as the dune bashing areas. Swimwear is acceptable around the beach and near pool area.
- Though Dubai is the most liberal amongst all emirates, still it is better to avoid tight-fitting or revealing clothes to avoid unsolicited attention
- You must remember to take off your footwear before entering a mosque or house of the local residents.
- It is an unsaid etiquette to give and receive money, food or other items with your right hand.
- Photographing local people without their permission is considered a sign of disrespect.
