Other Instructions

- Mountain Sickness Is A Real Danger And Can Be Fatal.
- Symptoms of acute mountain sickness (AMS) include headache, light-headedness, breathlessness and nausea.
- Hospitals in Leh are filled with tourists who think the weather is great and take acclimatization lightly." If you think something's wrong, stop or descend to the lowest possible point immediately.
- Medicines such as Diamox may be prescribed by general physicians prior to the trip and help reduce the chances of AMS—in case of any discomfort, this should be your first go-to. Having said that, the body is also fully capable of adjusting to the altitude on its own, if given time. Chewing something (especially garlic and chocolates) helps keep symptoms away.
